THE PRESENT TARIFF made by the DISCARD PROTECTION, but, on the contrary, has many strong protective features. Probably it will be forever some people want. impossible to eliminate protection from our system. The dispute, then, is as to the objects of protection and the degree of protection. What products and industries are to receive this favor, and to what extent? The complaint in many of our states is that the present tariff does not give fair treatment. We think our Pacific states have not received it. Our products have been put too liberally on the free list, while the products and industries of other states still receive protection. Laws should be equal, principle of equality should be studied | Populism. and pursued in making up its schedules. Otherwise, there should be no protection, and the system tariff for revenue only.

But WE HAVE NOT A TARIFF FOR REVNUE ONLY, nor shall we have it. Great interests in the east and south reject it. It cannot be said, then, that the issue now is whether we shall for we never have abandoned it. It genuine! has, however, been made unequal. present tariff with a studious purpose to protect many things. It remains, therefore, that the only question between the parties, as to protective tariff, is merely a question of details.

This question is not a matter to contend about, in the presence of the grave issue that the crusade for to 12 in favor of the Indian boys who change of the money standard has rightly feel proud of their success. forced upon the country. Why quarrel over the extent or degree of protection, in the face of such a danger? We could get on with tariff for revenue, with free trade, or with any system of protection, without disaster; but we could not make this change of money standard without everything their own way for the first inconceivable disorder to all industry two innings. The Indian boys stifand business, attended by wholesale bankruptcy and followed by introduction of a permanent system under which our working people, paid with seven tallies, and the Monograms money of inferior value, never would weren't "in it" from that time to have their former opportunities for the end, although they had three accumulation and independencec. This would put the whole life of our people on a distinctly lower plane heretofore. It is not necessary to say that the Republican party is committed to protection. That is understood. Its success undoubtedly would mean some revision of the tariff laws, and such revision is demanded in the interest of fairness and equality. Bur THIS IS NOT THE MAIN QUESTION; and since, on this main question, the Republican party is right, Democrats who see how supremely important it is that the country shall not permit debasemenet of its money can well afford to vote for McKinley, as such crash towels, from 5 cents upward, journals as the New York Herald hammocks at low prices for a good. urge and advise them to do. Chemawa vs. Portland.

Wednesday afternoon the Chemawa Indian training school baseball nine played the Portland Monagrams at Oregon City. The game resulted 22 The following account of the game is taken from the Oregonian:

"A feature of unusual interest this afternoon was the game of ball between the Monograms, Portland's champion club, and the Chemawa Indian nine. The Monograms took the field with a confidence born of numerous victories, and appeared to have fened a little, but their paleface opponents were still able to hold them level. In the seventh the red men found the ball and rapped it for different men in the box. The Indians were beautiful batters, and hit safe every time, and their field work in the latter half of the game was excellent. For the first time during the assembly the athletic field drew the crowd today, and staid Chautauquaus, men, women and children, whooped and shricked and danced as the various spectcaular plays were made. The Monogram players are all under 19 years of age. The Indians range from 17 to 21 years.

ains west of the city, yesterday, five men were struck by lightning, and all are now in the hospital here, three probably fatally injured. The men composed a section crew on the Colorado Midland railroad, and were working near Thomasville, thirty miles from Leadville. Heavy rain drove them to shelter, which two of them found under a large rock near the track, the other three getting under a giant pine. Soon there came a blinding flash, and the great tree was riven to splinters. The three under it were stricken as with death, while the two under the rock near by were shocked and stunned, but soon recovered consciousness, and were able to summon assistance. They found three blackened trunks, from which all clothing had been torn, but there were signs of life.

Portland Man's Unsuccessful Attempt at Suicide.

About 10:30 o'clock a Portland trav-

Approaching the fireman, the man addressed him as follows: "I am not fit for work any more. Good bye." Having given utterance to these words, he walked towards the edge of the deck. In the meantime the fireman kept his eye on the man who was acting so strangely, for it occurred to him that the man might be thinking of committing suicide. He was not mistaken in his belief for the man the coat-tail of the would-be-suicide and pull him back onto the deck.
